

You are cordially invited to join us in celebrating the first annual Malakoff's

FRENCH CONNECTION

Celebrate the historic French influences at Malakoff Diggins State Historic Park, a scenic park devoted to preserving and interpreting the story of the largest 19th century hydraulic gold mine in the nation. Extensive research has revealed how this historic site, nestled in the Sierra Foothills near Nevada City, California, was initially discovered, settled, and developed by French and French-speaking Canadian gold miners. Two interpretive panels to be unveiled on the day of the event will commemorate the contributions of these early French settlers, along with festivities celebrating their exploits at the mine.
